CHRISTMAS GOODS. Where to Buy Presents for the Holidays

have shown this year in the selection of their holiday goods such evidences of artistic taste, and their stock is of such proportions as to surprise all who visit it. The variety seems almost endless, nearly every conceivable article known to the arade being represented. The specialty this year in their line is fine illustrated books for children, and some of the works to be seen here are perfect works of art, both in conception and finish. The book which, to use a popular phrase, "takes the cake" is an English work from the well-known house of Marcia Ward & Company, entitled "At Home." The illustrations are simply exquisite and so taking that they cannot fail to charm any child who sees them. We venture to say it will have a large sale. Another book, almost equally good, entitled "becorative Sisters," is a take-off on the present decorative craze. An edition detaxe of flunyar's Pingrim's Progress will be bought by all lovers of the unique. It is a handsomely illustrated edition, bound in oak, taken from Elston Church when it was being restored. The sets of Dickens, Scott, Waver y Novels, and other standard authors appear this year cheape and handsomer than ever. The endless variety of seal, olive wood, plush, moreoce, calf and Russia leather albums, it gold and silver mountings, were never so rich before. The stock of relvet and gilt photograph frames and church services are too varied to be here enumerated: they must be seen to be appreciated. Everybody will be interested by paying them a visit.

The Commissioners have issued a letter to the residents on A street southeast, Capitol Hill, asking them to arrange their gates to open on the inside, so as not to obstruct the sidewalk.

The Commissioners have issued additional regulations to the Health Department in regard to plumbing and drainage. They have ordered that the regulations governing plumbing, house-drainage, and the ventilation of home sewers in the District made on the first of July, 1881, in pursuance of an act of Congress, approved January 25, 1891, entitled "An act authorizing the employment of an inspector of plumbing in and for the District and for other purposes," be smended as follows: "That on or before the expiration of the present year each plumber, in litt of the present sounds, will be required to give a single bond in the sum of 5600, which shall be deposited in the office of the Commissioners, which bond shall be a quarantee that the business conducted by the plumber shall be executed in accordance with the requirements of the regulations overning plumbing and bouse-drainage in the District, and also the rules and regulations of the engineer's department residing to the connections with the public sewers and water mains."

The disputed question with regard to the continuance of the Bellimore and Potomae Railroad depot at its present site has been brought to the Commissioners' attention for a decision. The Inspector of Buildings has sent a communication stating that the company, having made application for a permit to build a brick building for use as a baggage-room on the lot in rear of the depot, and fronting 111 feet on Sixth street, he refused the application, as the propticity of giving a permit to erect additional buildings on this site had been questioned. The letter recommends the granting of the permit.

A controversy has arisen between the Inspector of Buildings and Mr. Thomas E. Waggaman, the real estate agent, which will probably be settled in the courts, and will fix the status of the building regulations as law, Mr. Estwistle has condemned the frame dweiling No. 1007 C street northwest, for which Mr. Waggaman is the agent, as in a tumble-down condition and daugerous tolifo and limb. The Health Officer also has made a report that the building is in a very bad sanitary condition and unfit for occupation. Mr. Entwistle has ordered the building is in a very bad sanitary condition, which claim is denied by the Inspector, as the exputations say "that wooden buildings, frames, and sheeds which are dilapidated in their character shall not be repaired, but shall be taken down." Mr. Entwistle proposes to have the house immediately vacated and subsequently removed, while Mr. Waggaman says the authorities will be come vacant or attempt to pull the buildings, frames, and sheds which are dilapidated in their character shall not be repaired, but shall be taken down." Lotta in the "Little Detective."

Lotta in the "Little Detective."

Lotta, the bright, vivacious actress, whose songs and dances, whose merry face and ripping laughter have delighted the public to, these many years, again made sier bow and kicked up her dainy little heels at the National Theaire last night. The reception she received showed how warm a favorite this attractive little woman is with the Washington public. The play was "The Little Detective," in which Miss Lotta has perhaps fully as good opportunity for displaying her specialite as in any of the pleecs composing her repertoire, as she assumes six different characters, and in each her individuality is completely lost and she becomes for the time being the character she personates. She is ably supported by a company composed principally of those who have been associated with her for several seasons, and who perfectly fit into their respective parts. Messrs. Anderson, Bradshaw, Percy, Bainbridge, and Mrs. Bouliace, Miss Noble, and Miss Jordan proved their adaptability for the roles assigned them, and some of them are known as artists of long experience and superior shillty. "The Little Detective" will be repeated to night.

"Bob," the New Play.

Mr. Kinsley and his assistants at the National Theatre are very binsy supplying the demands for seats to the performances of "Bob," Lotta's new play, which will be presented here for the first time to-morrow night. "Bob" is pronounced by the Boston and Philadelphia critics to be one of the strongest plays in Lotta's repertoire. It is certainly prima jack evidence of its attractiveness that it was played to a fabulous amount of money both at the Park Theatre in Boston and the Chestnut Street Opera-House, Philadelphia. In the latter city, at the farewell matinee, over nine hundred ladies stood up during the performance.

Death of a Well-Known Printer. Mr. Jesse D.
